

Be realist , be feminist !

Being a feminist is defending equality between women and men in several areas, at school, at work, at home or in rights because there are still several inequalities. Feminism therefore brings together all the actions or movements of ralliers for this purpose.

There are several well-known pioneers of feminism such as: Olympe de Gouges, Angela Davis etc...

Everyone knows Rihanna, she is one of the most famous Métis singers of our generation. But I want to see Rihanna with my eyes. Robyn Rihanna Fenty is a woman born in 1988 of Barbados and Guyanese origin. Well known for her many songs and feats, I would like us to focus on the entrepreneurial part of her career.

Indeed, she has built her career with great autonomy, thus initiating herself in the cosmetic world with a lot of influence. Its Fenty Beauty brand is particularly close to my heart because it has been able to expand its products to include a maximum of skin tones.

Our heroine is also committed to women's rights either through her foundation Clara Lionel Foundation that funds groundbreaking education and emergency preparedness and response programs around the world.Or by its fight against misogyny and violence against women.

She is a feminist in her own way, not those with the most exploits but the one with one of the most inspiring stories.

Nevertheless, I would also like to devote a parenthesis to my sister, who, although she is not the central theme of my presentation given the immensity of feminism, nevertheless embodies strong values. My sister Sarah is now a professional footballer in Luxembourg, playing for the FC Mamer club. She is a determined young woman, on the rise to a brilliant career, who has been able to fight alone to achieve her goals, and I am extremely proud of it.

For me, being a feminist also means breaking stereotypes. Sarah, who has been playing football since she was very young - a sport often perceived as male - perfectly illustrates this idea. She chooses to wear sneakers simply because she loves them and wants to become a police officer because she is passionate about it, thus affirming her independence and authenticity.
