LANGUAGE, IDENTITY AND MULTICULTURALISM AROUND THE WORLD

Today, cultures and languages connect people all around the world. Every continent has its own traditions, celebrations, clothing, music and languages. In our project, we explored different cultures to understand how identity and cultural exchange are important in modern society.

Our group is made up of Lise, Rubbie and Precyla. Together, we created a podcast and shared information about cultures from different continents.

Lise talked about Europe and North America. She presented countries like Hungary, Iceland, Finland, France, Germany, Mexico, Guatemala and Canada. These countries have unique traditions and languages.

For example, Hungary is known for its traditional music and food, Iceland for its volcanoes and northern lights, and Mexico for the Day of the Dead celebration.

Rubbie explored Asia and South America. She talked about countries such as Japan, China, India, South Korea and Brazil. These cultures are famous for their festivals, traditional clothing, music and modern influences like K-pop and anime.

Precyla presented Africa and Oceania. She explained the importance of African traditions, dances and local languages. She also introduced countries from Oceania like Australia, New Zealand and Fiji, where culture is connected to nature and ancient traditions.

This project helped us discover new cultures and languages from around the world. We learned that language is an important part of identity and that multiculturalism helps people understand and respect each other.

Through our podcast, we wanted to share a message of unity, diversity and cultural exchange.
