

ENGLISH PRESENTATION : CULTURE AND LANGUAGES

Culture Without Borders

Rubbie :

Hello everyone, welcome to our talk show.

This week is special because it's the week of languages.

We have to talk about cultures and languages around the world with our group.

Bonjour Lise, mbolo Precyla!

Lise :

Bonjour tout le monde.

Precyla :

Mbolo everybody!

Rubbie :

To start, Precyla will introduce us to some cultures and languages from Africa.

I don't really know much about their culture.

What do you have to talk about, Precyla?

AFRICAN CULTURE

Precyla :

Egypt has a very ancient culture inherited from the civilization of the pharaohs.

The country is famous for its pyramids, temples, and hieroglyphs that attract visitors from all over the world.

Arabic is the official language, and religion plays an important role in daily life.

Music, belly dancing, and Egyptian cinema are very well known in the Arab world.

Egyptian cuisine includes traditional dishes such as koshari, foul, and falafels.

Egyptians place great importance on family, hospitality, and traditions.

Today, Egyptian culture combines ancient heritage, Arab influences, and modernity.

Great! It's very varied and the food looks delicious.

So, Lise, what about Europe and North America?

EUROPE & NORTH AMERICA

Lise :

Europe and North America have many beautiful cultures and languages.

In Hungary, people are known for traditional music and food like goulash.

People speak Hungarian, which is a very unique language.

In Iceland, nature is very important.

The country is famous for volcanoes and northern lights.

People speak Icelandic, which is a rare language.

In Mexico, traditions are colorful and lively.
One famous celebration is the Day of the Dead.
People speak Spanish and celebrate with music, flowers and traditional food.

These countries show that culture and language are important for identity and traditions.

Rubbie :

Thank you, Lise!

There remains one continent, that of K-pop, the festival of colors and sushi ; it is indeed Asia.

ASIAN CULTURE

Rubbie :

Asian culture is very vast and diverse.
It's marked by family values, respect for ancestors, and philosophies such as Confucianism and Buddhism.

It is punctuated by lunar festivals and characterized by complex languages and colorful celebrations.

Here are some festivals and traditions in Asia.

India :

In India, there are colorful festivals like Holi, the festival of colors.
During Holi, families prepare gujiya, a pastry filled with dried fruit and nuts flavored with cardamom.

Thailand :

Thai culture is diverse, and a journey to Thailand allows people to discover cultures through culinary arts and traditions.

South Korea :

South Korea shares part of its culture with North Korea.
It is influenced by Chinese culture but remains unique.

Traditional culture was influenced by Buddhism and Confucianism.
Korea is also famous for K-pop, with groups like BTS and Blackpink becoming popular around the world.

CONCLUSION

Everyone :

So many wonderful cultures exist both here and abroad.

Rubbie :

This week, at LHS, we'll be showcasing them to you.
Stay tuned, and greetings from home!
